

From: luisbosch@lbusch.com
Subject: from Luis make sure you copy and paste
Date: 11/15/2011 11:34 AM
To: williamrooks@att.net

Ray Caldwell,

Thank you for your respect as a Black Man, at no time I have talked about your coaching style. In my letter I stated that Coach Ray is doing a fine job with the girl's team. I also stated that you are one of the best trainers in San Antonio.

Being a good Father does Blinds us to reality. In your e-mail you said that you purposely did not establish a relationship with us to train KG and you know the "signs of headaches". If I thought that KG is better than he is why would I want you to train him? I am sorry that you did not have the BA__ S to tell me that you did want to train him. The parts about you were asked to work with a little team "Hard Work", I never asked for your credential. Let me tell you NOAH was with "Hard Work" and you were helping the coach. So in the coaches' absence you took one of his players.
How professional is that!

What is very telling about my e-mail is that my son needs more training.
But what my e-mail saying is that coach Alex "SON" could not bring the ball up the court with the caliber of players in the Gators team. I understand that Coach Alex has SA Finest so his son can play otherwise, he would be in the bench right next to KG. We do agree in something "Gregory" was a valuable player to the team and much better player than KG and most of the player in SA Finest.
But Coach Alex doesn't care for the team, only for his son to be playing up.
The same reason you only Coach Girls so your daughter plays the position you want them to play and control the game.
This is why you have rules for Parents talking to each others. You like to keep them Dumb and Blind.

KG will have a great Basketball career.
There is an old saying "You can teach Basketball but you cannot teach HEIGHT.

Thank you, and take care! Will